Invention of a German-Heat Energy Turned Directly Into Motion by Electricity.

From Germany comes the design of a remarkable motor that turns heat energy directly into motion through the intermediary action of electricity. The machine is called a thermo-electric motor, and works on the familiar principle of the electric motor somewhat modified to meet the peculiar exigencies of the case. In action it is essentially an electric motor, but one driving its electrical energy from heat applied to it through thermo-electric couples. A thermo-electric couple is composed of two dissimilar metals, such as iron and copper. Any complete circuit made of two metals must necessarily have two junctions of the two in it.

If one of these junctions is heated more than the other an electric current will flow in the circuit, its amount and direction depending on the nature of the two metals, the difference in temperature between the two junctions and the resistance it encounters in its path. On the motor machine the couples are made of iron and nickel, firmly brazed together. They are arranged like the windings of the ordinary electric motor, with one set of junctions brought conveniently to the surface, where gas jets play upon them.
The other set are cooled by a rapid circulation of air about them, engendered by the rotation of the machine. While the motor is of no practical value, it is an exceedingly interesting exemplification of the ease with which energy may be transformed and retransformed through the various forms of heat, electricity and motion.

Strawberries and Rice.

Boil 1 1/2 cupsful of rice, being careful to keep the kernels whole, adding, when it is about half done, the juice of two lemons. Drain thoroughly. Cover the bottom of a fruit dish with the rice, then add a layer of strawberries and sprinkle generously with sugar. Continue until it is all used. Serve with cream.—N. Y. Tribune.
